HERE'S how to know if your dryer is on the faulty list Whirlpool, which owns the Hotpoint brands, says it has identified a potential concern with two types of tumble dryers manufactured between April 2004 and September 2015. You can do this by locating the serial code and model number found on the back of the dryer or on the back of the dryer door and entering it onto the online checkers at safety.hotpoint.eu or safety.indesit.eu or safetyswan.eu. This should be on the same tag.

See the box above for more information. The appointment takes about an hour and you can schedule the engineer visit for a date and time that is convenient to you, including evenings and weekends. For example, it will cost 59 for a vented model or 99 for a condenser dryer. There are more than 10 models to choose from, which normally cost up to 349. Following reports of almost four million fire risk dryers in UK homes and some customers having to wait up to a year for their machine to be repaired, Which. Confusion We found that consumers are being pushed from pillar to post. On our mystery shop phone calls when posing as a consumer with a nine month old dryer, we were repeatedly told to take up a claim for a replacement with the retailer. Many of our 40 case studies tried this route and were told to take this up with Whirlpool. Whirlpool told us they were surprised by this, they would investigate and that this kind of behaviour was entirely inconsistent with their policy. Whirlpool tells us that it wants to avoid unnecessarily confusing consumers and that owners can use the model checker on its website to find out about affected models. One in five 20% Whirlpool customers who opted for a replacement felt they had no choice but to pay for a new machine and a third 33% said that, given the option, they would rather pay for a replacement than wait so long for a repair. Dissatisfaction Consumers overwhelmingly feel that Whirlpool is failing them. More than half 54% of the affected customers we surveyed felt dissatisfied with the way Whirlpool has handled this situation. This rises to eight in 10 80% among those who had to wait six months or more for a repair.

Opportunism Our undercover calls revealed that Whirlpool's recorded opening message automatically opts callers in to receive future marketing calls unless they ask to opt out. Whirlpool says that consumer data collected as part of the modification campaign isn't used for marketing unless a consumer has already registered their interest elsewhere. Which calls for action from Whirlpool Alex Neill, Which. Director of Policy and Campaigns said Whirlpool customers rightly feel dissatisfied with how they've been treated, being faced with delays, confusion and a lack of information. Whirlpool must clean up its act and sort this mess out. This case, affecting millions, clearly highlights the problems with the current product safety regulations. The Government must act swiftly to simplify the system and close the loopholes that allow companies to leave consumers without the basic information and advice they need. Which is calling on Whirlpool to clean up its act and commit to Clearly list all 127 affected model numbers on the front page of its website with details of how customers can get help. Speed up the process by making it quicker to generate a customer ID number when consumers first make contact with the call centre. Train its call centre staff to offer better advice to affected customers and stop directing them to retailers, who are in turn directing people back to Whirlpool, simply delaying the process. Whirlpool checklist Don't be fobbed off Due to the scale of the recall we believe you'll be best served by pursuing your claim with Whirlpool rather than being pushed from pillar to post between manufacturer and retailer. Replacement or repair. Many feel stuck between a rock and hard place when deciding which option to choose. Don't accept an inferior replacement, either haggle for a better machine or wait for a repair.

Opt out If you want to make sure don't receive any future marketing communications from Whirlpool you should ask to opt out from marketing calls when you contact Whirlpool. I have a Whirlpool dryer and don't know if it's affected, what should I do. We don't have a record of all the models that need modification. Find out more about those we do know about on our list of 113 of the 127 affected Whirlpool, Creda and Indesit models that we know of. You can call Whirlpool on 0800 151 0905 to find out if your dryer needs modification. You can also go to the Hotpoint or Indesit websites where you can input your model number and if your model is affected, you can then register for it to be serviced and modified. Creda dryers can also be checked on the Hotpoint site. Whirlpool response When we asked Whirlpool to comments on our findings, it said The safety of our customers is our number one priority. We are committed to doing everything we can to ensure that the modification programme is being carried out in a safe and timely manner. The scale of this modification programme is considerable and we're continually looking into alternative options which will allow us to progress the programme at a faster pace. As a result we continue to recruit extra engineers and call centre staff to speed up the modification programme. Which says. The failings highlight major issues with the current product safety regulations. Which has submitted this evidence to the Government's new steering group, established following Lynn Faulds Wood's review. We are asking it to review the Whirlpool case, look at how existing law applies in these situations and make practical recommendations to improve the product recall system within the next month. Hotpoint, Indesit and Creda tumble dryers included in the fire safety alert This list includes the 113 models of Hotpoint, Indesit and Creda tumble dryers that we know to be affected by the safety alert but there may be more.

If your dryer isn't on this list, call 0800 151 0905 or check online at safety.hotpoint.eu for Hotpoint and Creda or safety.indesit.eu to find out whether it is affected.

If the drum in your dryer no longer rotates or turns, the chances are your drumbelt may have snapped or worn. If the drum in your dryer is no longer rotating the chances are that your drumbelt may have snapped, you end up with a warm, damp pile of clothes.If the tumble dryer belt has snapped then follow this tumble dryer repair guide and watch the video tutorial. Rotate the drum slowly by hand to make sure the belt is able to travel unhindered and line up on the pulley wheel correctly. Reconnect the panels and test machine It was very clear. I'm trying to help out a friend whose hotpoint tumble drier has stopped turning.I suspected the fluff was causing a heavier load on the motor. When I opened up the unit I discovered loads of Fluff. Cleaned it out. However I made the mistake of taking off the knob off the timer. The front section of the timer came adrift and would not engage properly. Had to remove timer and I may have lost a spring. Have the big one from the shaft but there is one latch without a spring.The only point I'd like to make is about the lack of mention of the most important tool needed. I certainly didn't have anything resembling that so had to go to a diy store to buy a piece of piping and cut it down. I can do everything except getting the belt to stretch over the pulley wheel and motor spindle using pipe didn't work. Can you please help with tips on how to do this.I tried for an hour to measure up until I decided to take the belt off reluctantly and start again. Please use the contact us form instead.
